THE JEWISH FARMER

Why is it that the mere mention of the words "Jewish farmer" evokes a smile of cynicism and doubt from Jew and Gentile alike?

To the average person, the words "Jewish farmer" seem to imply the following paradox: If a man is a farmer, it can be taken for granted that he is not a Jew—and if a Jew, then he cannot possibly be a farmer.

This attitude of mind is even reflected in the Yiddish word "poer" which in usage is almost synonymous with the word "goy." A Jewish farmer I met the other day remarked apropos to the word "poer," "Al tikro poer, elo boer. Those who understand Yiddish will see the significance of this remark. It implies a genuine philosophy. In substance it means, "Do not call me a yokel, but a builder."

In spite of the popular notion that Jews and farming are as far apart as the Antipodes, the facts are quite the reverse.

A report recently issued by the Jewish Agricultural Society of the United States contains illuminating data showing that a substantial progressive and permanent Jewish farming class exists in the United States. When the Society first began functioning years ago, there were a bare 200 Jewish farmers' families in the United States. To-day there is a Jewish farm population of over 75,000. In 1900 the total acreage owned by Jewish farmers was 12,029. To-day more than 1,000,000 acres are farmed by Jewish hands, and the real estate and personal property values of their holdings aggregate $100,000,000.

Every state of the Union has its quota of Jewish land-tillers, and every branch of farming has its Jewish votaries. Jews are playing important roles in the research and scientific fields of American agricultural life.

Canada has over 5,000 Jewish farmers scattered over all the provinces, whilst in Ontario alone there are over eighty Jewish farmers. In southern Russia there are over half a million Jewish farmers, and it seems as if farming will become the only occupation in Soviet Russia, at which the Jew will be able to make a living, since trading and manufacture are bound up with many prohibitions and dangers. It will be farming or starvation for the Jew in Russia. In Argentine there are 30,725 Jewish farmers on 590,000 hectars of land. In 1923 they produced crops valued at $4,587,591. In Palestine the great majority of the 120,000 Jews live by farming in about sixty-five colonies.

These facts are sufficient proof that, given an opportunity, Jews are willing to return to the soil and become capable farmers.

What is most significant and too often overlooked, is that this Jewish back-to-the-land movement in the last twenty-five years, has been going on at a time when the drift in America and elsewhere, has been away from the farm to the city, and secondly, has been made by a people to whom farming was a forbidden occupation for 2,000 years. If the Jews are not farmers but city-dwellers, the blame is that of the Gentiles, whose governments forbade the Jews to own land.

It is scientific hokum to speak of the Jews as traders by instinct. If one may speak of the instinct and natural inclinations of a race, then the Jews were an agricultural and a pastoral people, who by force of necessity have become a nation of traders and shopkeepers and industrial workers.

What is the Bible and the Mosaic code but a record of laws made for an agricultural people? Most of the traditional Jewish festivals, like Passover, Shabuoth (the Feast of Weeks) and Succoth (the Feast of Ingathering), breathe of the soil and agriculture.

It was one of the most enjoyable and constructive pieces of work that has fallen to my lot to do in Canada to help in the organization of the Jewish farmers of Ontario, who last Sunday afternoon and evening, March 29, gathered together in the Synagogue chambers of the Holy Blossom Temple, 115 Bond Street, and formed themselves into the United Jewish Farmers' Association of Ontario. Over forty Jewish farmers were present; others who could not attend sent regrets, but promised to join. The conference deliberations were different from other Jewish meetings one often attends, where there is much excitement, a great deal of heat and little light. The Jewish farmers seem to have absorbed from their occupation a calm and sober deliberateness that is refreshing and welcome. They discussed such problems as kosher food for farmers, the religious education of their children, loans on small interest charges, and the establishment of a training farm for Jewish immigrants who wish to enter Canada for the purpose of going on the land, where they can learn English and practical farming.

The Jewish farmers are scattered and isolated. They do not settle in colonies as do the English, Danish, German and Ukrainian farmers. They do not enjoy those social contacts that the others have. In many cases they start out without a knowledge of the English language, which further complicates their work. Nevertheless one of the refreshing sentiments expressed at the conference was that the Jewish farmer experiences no anti-Semitism. In fact several Jewish farmers stated that their Christian neighbours treated them with unusual respect and courtesy. Does not this fact speak volumes? Is it not true that if there were a large Jewish farming class in Canada and in other lands, there would be less anti-Semitism? I am inclined to believe so. The Jewish farmer is for the Jewish community what the roots are to a tree. The deeper the roots go down in the soil, the healthier and stronger is the tree. So it will be with the Jewish position in the countries of the world when there is a large Jewish farming class.

Another unique thing about Jewish farmers is that they are making agriculture pay when farmers everywhere are complaining that agriculture does not pay. If the Jew can combine his remarkable capacities of financing with agriculture, he will make a great contribution to the back-to-the-soil movement among all peoples.

What the farmers as a class have to overcome, is the pathetic indifference and cynicism of the city man, who does not believe that farming can be made to pay, and who looks down upon the farmer as belonging to a lower social class than he does. The Jewish farmer has the same problem to contend with so far as the Jewish middle and industrial classes are concerned. In addition, the Jewish farmer has to contend with the strictly orthodox Jew, who regards the Jewish farmer, who has to milk his cows and feed his stock on the Sabbath, as a violator of the Jewish law, and therefore a bad Jew. But these problems can and will be overcome. The time has come when the Jewish farmer is looked upon with the highest respect, as a man who is pioneering in a field that sheds lustre on the name Jew. A word of praise

FEDERATION SPENT $188,125

On March 29, at the eighth annual general meeting of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies in the Baron de Hirsch Institute, Bleury Street, several hours of heated discussion were devoted to a resolution of three years' standing proposing a change of the method of election of officers.

A roughly estimated deficit of $63,000 in all for the coming year was forecast by the president, Joseph Levinson, Sr. While the year just ended had shown expenditures of $188,125, with a surplus of $5.75, an urgent appeal was made to increase subscriptions and the general membership list.

Increased activities in practically every one of the fifteen branches of the Federation were summarized by Mr. Levinson, Sr. The Family Welfare department supported 1,150 destitute families during the year, an increase of forty-eight over the previous year; the population in the Hebrew Sheltering Home grew to twenty-two, the largest in the history of the institution; in the Hebrew Orphans' Home ninety-three children were cared for, twenty-eight more than during 1923; during an active year in the clinic 9,725 persons were treated and 5,766 prescriptions issued; more than 300 girls were enrolled in the classes at the Jewish Endeavor Sewing School, and in the Young Women's Hebrew Association membership was over 500.

Reports are included for the Montreal Jewish Court of Arbitration, the Legal Aid Department, the Baron de Hirsch School, the Baron de Hirsch Library, the Montreal Hebrew Orphans' Home, the Herzl Hospital and Dispensary, the Montreal Hebrew Old People's and Sheltering Home, the Juvenile Aid Department, the Y.W.H.A. Welcome Camp, the Hebrew Ladies' Sewing Society and the Jewish Endeavor Sewing School.

WANTED AT ONCE—Three rooms, nicely furnished, with kitchen, also necessary utensils. Young, sociable Jewish couple and boy of five. Give full particulars. Box 100, CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, 288 St. James Street, Montreal.

The question of election methods gave rise to a resolution instructing the newly-elected officers to appoint a committee to study the problem.

A resolution of congratulation was moved and adopted by the Federation to be sent to the new Hebrew University.

Trustees elected: E. M. Berliner, A. Bronfman, A. Z. Cohen, Joseph A. Dobrofsky, C. B. Fainer, M. Feldman, Leon Fischel, A. L. Gittleson, A. H. Jassby, David Kirsch, Dr. Simon Kirsch, J. Latt, Felix Leopold, Albert Lesser, J. Levinson, Sr., Joel Saxe, Martin Simon, M. M. Sperber, K.C.

Blankets will not shrink if washed this way—

To keep your blankets soft, fluffy and unshrunken—wash them in Lux. Blankets of fine wool, wool nap, wool and cotton—you can trust them all to the gentle Lux suds.

Wash blankets this way:

A rich live suds is essential throughout the washing of blankets. To obtain this, use two tablespoonfuls of Lux to every gallon of water in the washing.

Dissolve the Lux thoroughly in very hot water, whisking it into a thick suds. Add cold water until lukewarm. Put the blanket into the rich suds, souse it up and down, and squeeze the suds through the entire blanket. If suds die down, add more Lux, taking care that it dissolves before you put the blanket in again. Press the suds through the soiled spots if any, but never rub the blanket.

Rinse in three or more lukewarm waters, of the same temperature as the suds. Fold evenly, run through a loose wringer and hang dripping. Never wring tightly. Pull gently into shape at intervals when drying. Do not expose wet blankets to extremes of heat or cold.

Ordinary common bar soap or chips shrink wool, and coarsen and yellow it. Lux is mild and pure, and entirely free from any ingredients that could harm or shrink wool fibres. Lux keeps your blankets like new.

Jews and Catholics have something new to think about since the refusal of Bishop William T. Manning, of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York, to allow other Protestants than Episcopalians to sit on the board of trustees in what was to be "a shrine of worship for all the people." When the bishop began his campaign for fifteen millions of dollars with which to complete the Cathedral, his appeal was "a church for all the people." Now that his narrowness toward even members of his own faith is revealed, many trusting Jews and Catholics, who gave lavishly under the spell of rhetoric and hot air, have cause to wonder what his liberality toward them is worth and how on earth they fell for whatever it was that made them pour out their wealth.

Some enlightenment is available to them in a recent issue of Printers' Ink entitled "A Bishop's Thoughts on Salesman's Calls or What Bishop William T. Manning Has Learned in Preparing for a $15,000,000 Campaign." The gem offered the public in this article is that the success of a campaign such as Bishop Manning's depends upon the ability to get salesmen to make calls instead of writing letters. Personal selling, that is the great thing, says the Bishop, that's the way to get the money, and coming from a man who had the nerve to ask fifteen million dollars from all of the people for just two weeks of the time, the statement should carry some weight.

The article in Printers' Ink tells in detail how one goes about getting a lot of money for the greater glory of God in a day of excessive competition between the churches. Preparation for this colossal campaign took eleven months, not counting time out for prayers. Appeals were sifted and classified and advertising arranged for. Research work for the campaign included a study of the cathedral register of visitors, which contains also the religion of each. As a result the appeal decided on was "a Cathedral for all the people." Statements were secured from men of high position outside the Episcopal Church. Organization work included the Committee on Community Co-operation and other committees representing the business, professional and social life of New York.

All sorts of advertising in papers, posters, folders, cards, et cetera, carried the appeal "a community undertaking for men and women of every creed and belief." Added to this were the willing speakers among Jews, Catholics and Protestants of all sects who talked about the beauty of a community working together to build a church for all; of the development of the spirit of brotherhood; of "the Cathedral which would symbolize the indestructible unity in Christ which no schism usurps."

As a result New Yorkers walked under a tent which they thought was of great religious and civic meaning and while it was being dropped on them subtly if not noiselessly, made a present to the Episcopal diocese of the completion of the Cathedral. Many and interesting were the gifts dislodged from the cornucopia. Among the Jews Mortimer Schiff gave $25,000. Adolph S. Ochs presented two costly menorahs reminiscent of Solomon's temple. Congregation Beth Elohim of Brooklyn sent $500 with the reminder that we all have one Father and therefore love our neighbours as ourselves and always "want to aid such glorious religious enterprises." And so on.

People of all creeds gave as they were told to do. Was there any polite, intangible coercion in the air, or do Jews and Catholics build churches for Protestants as a rule and vice versa? Perhaps one explanation for the Jews and Catholics is that they have succumbed a bit to panic, living under the shadow of the Ku Klux Klan. It would depress one to believe that they really expected the Cathedral to be for all the people, as the bishop said. What he meant, judging from his eleven months' labour before the campaign, was a Cathedral from all the people. If they did take him at his word they now have food for harsh thought, for at the bishop's refusal to allow other Protestants to sit with his trustees, the indestructible unity in Christ is being usurped by at least one schism. People of all faiths who gave their money to show their broad interest in religion can be entertained now while they see it used to the glory of architecture rather than the spirit, as a testimonial to their own gullibility and Bishop Manning's care in working out a great business campaign.

Consumers' Gas Co. Starts Home Service Department

MISS GLADYS EATON.

Every woman takes pride in her cooking, and in proper, well-balanced meals; she is always eager to learn advanced methods in cookery, how to conserve on gas consumption, how to get the best out of her gas range at minimum cost. With these thoughts in mind, the Gas Company has inaugurated a Home Service Department for the benefit of the women of Toronto and vicinity.

This new department will be under the direction of Miss Gladys Eaton, graduate of MacDonald Institute, Guelph, whose experience as an instructress and lecturer on home economics will be especially valuable to women who avail themselves of this unique, free service.

Miss Eaton will demonstrate how to attain the greatest efficiency out of the material used to provide for the meals of the modern home. Each Wednesday afternoon will be devoted to lectures and demonstrations at the Company's new Home Service Auditorium, 55 Adelaide Street East. Arrangements have been made that all who attend may enjoy these demonstrations under the most favourable circumstances.

Take your cooking problems to Miss Eaton. She will be glad to give you every possible assistance. However, with or without problems, Miss Eaton will be glad to meet all women who are interested in the improvement of the home.

Seasonable menus will be discussed and demonstrated as the occasion arises. The first lecture will be given on Wednesday, April 8, at 2.30 p.m., when the subject will be "Easter Menus."

To Assist Jews to Become Farmers

The United Jewish Farmers of Ontario, a body having as its objects the training of Jews desiring to go on the land and the aiding of those already engaged in farming, was organized under the presidency of Morris Saxe, of Georgetown, Ont., at two meetings held in the Holy Blossom Synagogue Sunday afternoon and evening. Following a general discussion, it was decided to proceed at once with the work of organization, and application will be made to the Provincial Government for a charter. Invitations will also be sent to all Jewish farmers in Ontario not present at yesterday's meetings to become charter members of the organization.

Speaking at the afternoon meeting, Mr. Saxe discussed the work to be undertaken under four heads, viz., the providing of kosher food for present Jewish farmers, Jewish education for farm children, the assisting of present farmers through loans, and the establishment of a school to teach newcomers farming. Other speakers included the chairman, Rabbi Brickner, S. Samuels and J. Rappaport.

The fact that, contrary to popular belief, the Jew was by inclination a farmer, was pointed out at the evening meeting by Rabbi Brickner, who made reference to many portions of the Bible in which the Jews were depicted as an agricultural people. If the Jew had ceased to be a farmer it was because he had been driven off the farm land by the laws of antiquity and the Middle Ages. The speaker pointed out that at present thousands of Jews are engaged in farming all over the world with marked success. In the movement of Jews to the land, he saw the beginning of a better understanding between races, as there was no anti-Semitism in the country as in the cities.

J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company, declared that he could see great possibilities in the movement and thought that perhaps the Jews would be able to show other farmers how to make agriculture pay. He saw no reason why the two organizations could not work together in the closest unison, and expressed the hope that they would do so. Other speakers included Prof. Dean of the Ontario Agricultural College and the Mayor of Georgetown.

Officers elected: Honourary president, Rabbi Brickner; president, Morris Saxe, Georgetown; vice-president, S. Samuel Samuels, Pontypool; secretary, S. Levine, Toronto; treasurer, H. Rhackman, Cedar Valley; executive committee (four members to be appointed by city members), J. Smith, Cedar Valley; M. Borenstein, Pontypool; M. Fine, Millikens; M. Kushner, Cedar Valley; L. Greenspoon, King City; M. Berman, Monticello; and M. Borinsky, Stouffville.

JEWISH FARMERS MULTIPLY IN U.S.

Rapid development of the Jew as an American farmer from 1900, when there were only 200 Jewish farm families in the United States, owning 12,029 acres, to the present with 75,000, owning more than 1,000,000 acres, is shown in a report issued by the Jewish Agricultural Society, Inc., No. 301 East 14th Street, New York.

Four thousand Jews operate farms in New York State alone, and the society, headed by Percy S. Straus, president, and Gabriel Davidson, general manager, is assisting others who desire to take up land. Help also is given to the farmer, the farm woman, labourer, boy and girl through the loan, labour, settlement, extension and sanitation departments, the report shows.

The loan department, since its establishment in 1900, has granted 7,441 loans aggregating $4,762,000, covering thirty-nine states. Repayment of loans is spread over a long period and the report shows there is no exaction of bonus or commission or payment of renewal charges. Losses during the twenty-five years have been less than 4 per cent.

Farm employment has been obtained for 15,355 Jewish young men since the labour department was established in 1908, 682 being placed last year.

The extension department maintains a purchasing service bureau and the department publishes the Jewish Farmer, the only Yiddish agricultural magazine in the world.

Obstacles in the way of Jewish immigration into Palestine, placed by an ordinance of a Palestine official, were removed by an order of District Governor Symes. Governor Symes cancelled the order issued by the Beisan subgovernor that no visas for relatives of colonists in his district would be issued until all their taxes had been paid.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 1

Tea as a Beverage

Tea first became known in China nearly 3000 years before Christ. In that country tea was greatly prized, both for its remarkable qualities as a beverage and for the almost religious ceremony attached to the drinking of it. Up to the sixth century, tea was used only for medicinal purposes. Even in the seventeenth century it cost $25.00 to $50.00 per pound. All tea caddies were constantly kept under lock and key. Today when even fine quality like "SALADA" costs less than one-third of a cent per cent per cup, it is not surprising that the consumption of tea is increasing tremendously.

EMPIRE

It is extremely likely that members of the audience at the Empire Theatre next week will fairly gasp in viewing the finale of the first act to be presented in "Come Along" by an aggregation of Columbia Burlesque entertainers. Massive stairways coming down the center of the stage from the back wall to the very edge of the footlights provide a runway up and down which the entire company will parade and dance to the strains of "The Come Along Glide," the melody hit of the show. Only the most elaborately equipped productions as a whole dare attempt as pretentious an effect as this show achieves. But it is not alone in scenic features that "Come Along" excels. In the matter of its cast, headed by "Rib" Shannon and Artie Leeming, there will be appeal to those who have watched and enjoyed the work of these comedians in big-time vaudeville and burlesque where they have headlined for many seasons. The supporting company will be of high caliber, employing Alice Lawlor, Betty Burroughs and Elsie Leoni as particularly attractive feminine leaders. Chorus girls' contest, Thursday night.

SHEA'S

"Henry Santrey and His Orchestra" is the simple announcement on the Shea's Theatre bill for this week. Shea's audiences do not have to be told of the excellence of this organization, an assemblage of ten musicians who harmoniously toss notes from oboe, banjo, saxophone and slide trombone with the ease of finished jugglers. Mr. Santrey himself is a famous American baritone. His voice has been heard in every manner of musical production, but now it is devoted entirely to the jest of jazz.

Harry and Anna Seymour have an offering that is filled with songs, dances and mirth. Anna Seymour is a dainty bit of humanity and Harry the kind of a chap that is extremely likeable. As an extra offering, Anna Seymour and Henry Santrey offer "A Little Comedy Surprise."

Mlle. Marceline d'Alroy calls herself "the Designing Woman." She is a famous Parisienne interpreter of fashion and offers her own original designing and draping novelty. She takes a few yards of material and a few pins and makes the most ravishing creations on her own slim person in full view of the audience. Harry Rosa needs no introduction; he is a real travesty artist and has a monologue that is crammed to the limit with laughs.

ST. CATHARINES

On Sunday evening, March 29, a large gathering took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. Greenberg, 16 Water Street, in honour of Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Volpe, who are leaving St. Catharines for Toronto. The toast master, M. Sulman, presented the guest of honour, on behalf of the Jewish community of St. Catharines, with a silver tea service.

MRS. MARY SCHULTZ IS 100, WHILE MRS. IDA GOLDBERG IS 104 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Mary Schultz was happy. "I like young men to send ladies flowers on their birthdays," she explained, pointing to 100 tulips—one for each of her years—which stood on a table in her room in the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, 105th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, New York.

Mrs. Ida Goldberg also was happy. The Board of Directors and other officials of the United Home for Aged Hebrews, New Rochelle, tendered to her a birthday dinner, to which eighty guests were invited. In front of Mrs. Goldberg's place at the table stood a huge basket holding 104 tulips.

"I have been so happy that I won't complain when I die," Mrs. Schultz told the friends and relatives who called to congratulate her. "I am content that God has given me the chance to celebrate my 100th birthday."

But Mrs. Goldberg said she was so happy she felt like getting married again. Alexander Pfeiffer, vice-president of the home, told her she should have the most gorgeous wedding that ever took place in New Rochelle if she became a bride.

While Mrs. Schultz was enjoying ice cream and cake with the other 302 inmates of the Manhattan home, chatting cheerily with friends and giving her grandnieces good advice, Mrs. Goldberg sat at the place of honour at her dinner in New Rochelle, a huge cake with 104 candles near her.

Mrs. Schultz likes the young flapper, although she doesn't pretend to understand her.

"You can't expect the young girls to-day to act just as we did when we were young," she told her elderly companions, none of them under sixty. "But we all feel alike when we are twenty. A century makes a difference only in the way we show our feelings."

Both women see and hear perfectly.

ANNUAL MEETING OF FEDERATION

The annual meeting of the Federation, April 5, 3 o'clock, Talmud Torah Auditorium, Brunswick Avenue, near College Street. "Labour Judge" Jacob Billikopf, of New York and Philadelphia, will be the principal speaker and guest of honour. Mr. Billikopf is the impartial chairman for the New York clothing market. He is the court of last resort —the final judge—for all disputes between the union and the manufacturers in almost two hundred clothing factories in the New York district, but, unlike other judges, he wants least of all things to render a decision. He would much rather they settled it entirely themselves, without any outside assistance, even of their own choosing.

1924 has been the best year for Federation since its founding, in 1917. $22,500 more money was raised than the year previous. The severe unemployment situation last winter compelled the Family Welfare Bureau to spend $4,000 more than in 1923; $25,000 in cash and ninety tons of coal were distributed among two hundred and fifty families.

The principal business of the meeting will be the election of ten new trustees, the report of the work of the Federation, and the adoption of by-laws approved the past year by the Board of Trustees. Special exhibits of the work of the affiliated organizations will be displayed.

should also be spoken for the Jewish farmer's wife. In reality it is her willingness to forego the conveniences enjoyed by her sister in the cities that makes it possible for the Jewish farmer to remain on the farm.

The most important resolution adopted by the Conference is the one that deals with the establishment of a Jewish training farm. Canada is to-day closed to Jewish immigration because Jews do not go on the farm. Canada could become the home of thousands and thousands of Jews if they only would become farmers. There is fine land available near towns and railway, and it can be obtained at the right price to-day.

It is impossible for a Jew, or anyone else for that matter, to become a farmer without the necessary skill and experience. The Jewish immigrant will work hard—he is not looking for a "soft snap" or a "white-collared job." The trouble is that he has neither the experience nor the skill to be a farmer or farm hand. Not knowing the language and being unwilling and unaccustomed to eating pork, he cannot be placed with Gentile farmers. A Jewish training farm of about 200 or 300 acres would be the finest solution of the problem. Here the Jewish immigrant could be trained in practical farming. He could learn the language and then after six months or a year, go out, rent or buy a farm, and become a self-supporting useful Canadian.

To do this requires money, but not much money. A fund of $100,000 could start the experiment. The investment would be the securest imaginable, because it would be put into land, machinery, farm implements, etc. The money could be raised by selling bonds of small denominations. I am certain these bonds would find ready market among the Jewish public.

What is needed now is that the Jews of Canada who spend hundreds of thousands in charity each year, should organize and establish such a training farm. It would have, I am certain, the unanimous endorsation and support of the Dominion and Provincial Governments. It would make possible the bringing into Canada freely of thousands of Jewish immigrants, who would be most welcome.

Is this plan chimerical? I do not believe it is. I believe that it is the most practical plan that has yet been brought forward to solve the Jewish immigration problem.

The United Jewish Farmers' Association of Ontario is the first Jewish organization of its kind in Canada. It should be hailed with high hopes. It deserves the active co-operation and support of the Jewish city dwellers of Canada.

The Morgen Zeitung is the only newspaper in Middle Europe which advocates the cause of Judaism.
